

Customs individual crew declaration (Sea) (New Zealand domiciled crew)

1. Declaration of Goods

- a. On arrival of the ship at the first port in New Zealand, this form must be completed by each New Zealand domiciled member of the crew, in readiness to be handed to the Customs officer. The form is required in duplicate. Each person must state opposite his or her name, all the goods in his or her possession or custody, other than those goods covered by paragraph 2 below, whether to be landed or not.
- b. All goods found in the ship and not shown on the form (except those goods exempted from declaration), may be liable to forfeiture and the owner or person in possession to prosecution.
- c. All goods must be produced to Customs on request. If in doubt about any article, declare it.

2. Goods not required to be declared

Personal effects are not required to be declared. Personal effects are defined as any clothing, toilet articles, or jewellery in your possession or custody that

- are not intended for your own use or wear; and
- are not intended for any other person or persons or for gift, sale or exchange.

3. Goods that must be declared

- a. All goods in your possession or custody other than those covered by paragraph 2;
- b. Firearms and ammunition
- c. Cash totalling $10,000 or more.

Note: Under the Anti Money Laundering and Countering Financing of Terrorism (Cross-border Transportation of Cash) Regulations 2010, cash includes not only New Zealand currency but also foreign currency and bearer-negotiable instruments (such as bills of exchange, cheques, promissory notes, bearer bonds, traveller's cheques, money orders, postal orders, and other similar orders). Cash must be declared on the appropriate form prescribed by those regulations.

4. Landing of goods in New Zealand

No goods shall be landed without the written authority of a Customs officer.
